- 1) Co-Owner A is the primary care giver and agrees to cover all expenses required for this care. These include but are not limited to veterinary bills, feeding costs and grooming expenses.
- 2) Co-Owner A agrees to have this puppies hips and elbows radiographed at 2 years of age for OFA evaluation. If the hips are deemed unsuitable for breeding it may be altered by Co-owner A. Co-Owner B has the right to finish the dog before he is altered.
- 3) If for any reason Co-owner A is unable to keep the dog then Co-owner B has the first option to retake possession of it for no more than the original purchase price.
- 4) Co-owners must agree on the stud dog for the litters in which co-owner has the option of a puppy. This should be limited to the first two litters unless only 1 puppy is born in either of the 2 litters. (See #5)
- 5) Co-owner B is to receive second pick puppy from the first two litters. In succeeding litters co-owner B has the first option to buy a puppy. If co-owner A is not keeping first pick pup then co-owner B has the right to take this puppy instead of second pick. If only one puppy is born in a litter it belongs to co-owner A and co-owner B will wait for the next litter. If only one pup is born again co-owner B has the first right to it.
- 6) Both co-owners will sign the blue slips.
- 7) Co-owner A agrees to show and make all attempts to finish this dog. If a reasonable effort is not made then co-owner B may take possession of the dog for this purpose. Co-owner B would cover these show expenses.
- 8) If the dog is found to be sterile or turns out not to be of breeding quality then co-owner A may keep the dog with nothing owed to co-owner B or it may be sold and the purchase price will be divided equally between co-owners.
